Salvation Army $1,000,000 Drive

The Salvation Army are, during March, making a Dominion-wide campaign for one million dollars, which they need to carry on their war work and maintain the work of the Army throughout Canada.

War imposes upon the Salvation Army extra tasks and a heavier burden of responsibility. As in the Great War of 1914-18, the Salvation Army will accompany the Canadian troops. The Salvation Army will "do its bit" to keep alive the spirit of Christian kindness amidst the cruelty and devastation of war. Its welfare service is fourfold:

1. Red Shield Huts and Service Overseas with Canadian troops.
2. Auxiliary Services in Canadian Assembly Camps in England or elsewhere.
3. Service Centres in Camps and Cities throughout Canada.
4. The Home Service Activities of the Salvation Army.

It is for all this work that the money is needed. It is for this that the Salvation Army asks your help. You know its record in the last war. Help it to "carry on."

The quota for Didsbury and district has been set at $300.00 and the campaign will start on March 11th and will continue until March 20th. This will be the only appeal made by the Army this year.

Lieut. Gillingham, Olds, is campaign director, and the local committee is composed of H. Hawkes, W. D. Spence, Ed. Ford and Ed. Watkin, with H. S. Beveridge as treasurer.

Celebrate Golden Wedding.

Celebrating their Golden Wedding anniversary Sunday, March 4, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Weber were honored Tuesday night by over 70 friends from town and country, who called to extend congratulations. With Mr. Dave McEwen as chairman and Rev. C. J. Hallman giving the address of the evening, a good program was enjoyed. Short talks were given by M. B. Clemens, T. A. Murphy, Dan Dippel and other old timers of the district. Following a lunch, featured by a large three-tier cake, Mr. and Mrs. Weber were presented with a large bouquet of flowers and a purse.

Amos Weber and Rossilla Wombold were married at Berlin, Ont., March 4, 1890. With many other settlers they came to Didsbury in April, 1901, settling on a farm just west of town, where they have been prominent farmers since. Mr. Weber has been active in municipal affairs in the Waterloo district and at present is secretary of Waterloo school.

Mr. and Mrs. Weber have four sons living, Orvil in British Columbia, Norman, Gordon and Archie at Didsbury. One son, Oliver, is dead. There are four grandchildren.

Masonic Bonspiel.

The annual Masonic Bonspiel was held Friday last and though the ice got somewhat heavy during the day, which made it hard sledding, especially for those who did not curl regularly, all seemed to have an enjoyable time.

The following rinks were entered, starting off as indicated in a two-way competition:

McFarquhar vs Fisher	Brusso	Studer
Law	McDougall	Wordie
Dr. Clarke	Dr. Liesemer

In the semi-finals of the Right competition, Fisher beat Law and Liesemer beat Kirby; in the final, Liesemer beat Fisher.

In the semi-finals of the Left competition, Brusso beat McFarquhar and McDougall beat Clarke; in the final, Brusso beat McDougall.

The winning rinks were: Dr. Liesemer, George Burns, Roger Barrett and John Liesemer. A. Brusso, John Topley, Sandy Foote and Oscar Rupp.

Red Cross Notes

Convenors and knitters please note: The Provincial Chairman of the Women's War Work Committee compliments us on our work generally, but points out something very important about Socks. "Please be certain that the toes are carefully grafted and free from lumps and knots." We are getting along famously, but don't let any of us make it necessary for the Calgary women to unravel our work. We have a splendid reputation to keep up.

A meeting of the executive of the Red Cross was held on Tuesday evening, when delegates to the annual meeting of the Red Cross, to be held in Calgary on Friday, were chosen. Having a membership of over 350, the local branch was entitled to five delegates and the following were appointed: Mrs. Ed.

Liberal Candidate.

A. CLARK BURY

Liberal Candidate, Re-elected Federal Constituency.

Mr. Bury can be called a pioneer resident of the constituency, having been stationed in charge of the Mounted Police detachment at Olds in the early 1900's.

He was born in Lancashire, Eng., and came to Canada while still in his teens and joined the North West Mounted Police. After serving his five years he took his discharge and studied law at the University of Alberta, graduating in 1914.

During the Great War, Mr. Bury acted as adjutant at the Jasper Internment Camp. When the camp closed he opened a law office in Olds, where he has since practiced his profession.

Mayor Davison Will Speak Here

Mayor Davison of Calgary will be the principal speaker at a meeting, in support of the Independent candidate, which will be held in the Didsbury Opera House on Thursday next, March 14th. E. M. Brown, the independent candidate, will also speak at the meeting.

Ladies Night at Jr. Board of Trade

It was ladies night at the Junior Board of Trade meeting, which was held on Monday evening and there were about 40 present, with a good representation from the country.

After a short business session, the meeting was taken over by the master of ceremonies, Ernie Clarke.

A Quiz contest, which caused lots of amusement, was won by Mrs. Alex Robertson and H. S. Beveridge.

Whist and Chinese checkers were played and a splendid lunch was served.

A number of new members were signed up and prospects look good for an increased membership.

Parker, Mrs. N. Eckel, Mrs. Dunlop, Mrs. Booker and J. E. Gooder.

Mr. Austin will attend as a member of the Southern Alberta executive.

S.C. Candidates Address Meeting

E. P. Foster, M.L.A., and J. F. Shaw, Social Credit Federal candidate, addressed a public meeting on Tuesday, when approximately 100 persons were present.

Mr. M. Weber occupied the chair and remarked that the condition of the road prevented a good many from the country from attending.

E. P. Foster, in opening his remarks, said that there would be no mudslinging in his campaign, as characterized by some important persons over the radio.

He claimed that the only increase in taxation to the public had been in the social service tax, which was offset by benefits received by the municipalities. He said that taxes had been largely increased on banks and corporations which he claimed did affect the general public.

He pointed to the government's achievements in the matter of roads, education and health, claiming that Alberta was further advanced towards state medicine than any other province.

He said that the ultra vires decision of the Privy Council did not mean anything and that they would continue to pay only half interest on Alberta bonds and he claimed that the province had saved money by way of commissions by defaulting on their bonds instead of refunding.

Mr. J. F. Shaw, the federal candidate, also addressed the meeting and said that the only issue was the war and the economic situation. He said he was campaigning in the New Democracy banner because Social Credit was New Democracy.

Leap Year Day Not Forgotten

The stork came to Didsbury in a minor roll on Leap Year Day, February 29, when it brought three bull dog puppies to Harold McFarquhar's "Margo of Mercury," and the mother and puppies are doing well.

These puppies are not only leap year babies but they are aristocrats in their line as a full sister of theirs, "Pullham Patty 2nd," raised by Mr. McFarquhar, has won championships in the puppy classes at the best shows across the Dominion.

Harold says, as they will not have a birthday for four years, they will be a long time in the puppy classes.

A Close Shave In Barber Shop

When an automobile steering wheel locked Saturday the car crashed an electric light standard and continued its wild path into a barber shop on Edmonton's main street.

Walter H. Broadhead, driver of the car; Walter Daynes, occupying a barber chair in the shop; the barber, Frank Crowe, and a pedestrian, escaped unhurt though the entire car stopped inside the shop window. In addition the machine also knocked a two-foot round hole out of the side wall of the shop.

The Aftermath Of War

If history repeats itself, war invariably brings unpleasant aftermaths in its train in the form of economic depression, unemployment, disputes over peace settlements between the combatants and bickerings over indemnities and war debts. Similar uncomfortable manifestations may be expected as aftermaths of the war in which Canada and the Allies are presently engaged, unless some thought is given to these problems in plenty of time to devise and shape policies to prevent them.

Considerable attention is already being given to the question of peace settlement terms by various authorities on both sides of the Atlantic and this augurs well for this problem being settled in such a manner that the terms will not sow the seeds of a future war and will provide a reasonable measure of security against aggression, with the smaller democratic countries as a target. Numerous suggestions have been made with this objective in view, some of them impracticable, no doubt, no matter how desirable they may be. But the value of these suggestions being made at the present time lies in the fact that they are provocative of much thought and considerable discussion and it is to be hoped will lead to crystallization of world thought by the time the war is over and peace terms have to be concretely considered. By that time views may be well digested and there will be no necessity to make hasty and ill considered decisions.

There is another matter, however, which will have to be faced at the same time, or very soon after, and that is the question of war debts. The debts incurred in the first great war resulted, as everyone will remember, in a great deal of bickering, ill feeling and mutual recriminations between some of the debtor and creditor nations. It is to be hoped that after this war is over reasonable settlement and compromises can be effected, so that similar displays can be subsequently avoided.

What interest the United States will have as creditor of the Allies after the close of the current war is problematical, in view of the fact that the Americans at present are selling munitions and war supplies to Great Britain and France strictly on a cash and carry basis. In the event of the war being a lengthy one, it is possible that the United States may modify its terms and extend credit, rather than lose a great deal of lucrative business.

Of Interest To Canada

The question, however, is one of considerable importance to the people of this country, since undoubtedly this country will extend considerable credit to both Great Britain and France, especially if the war is protracted. That this country is willing to consider transacting business on this basis when, and if, it becomes necessary, is practically certain, for, as Wellington Jeffers, financial editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail says: "they" (Canadian statesmen) "consider the British and French to be 'good pay' and 'willing pay' even after a close study of the experience of the United States with money lent them."

"In fact," continues Mr. Jeffers referring to the war debt experiences after the war of 1914-18, "it is hard for Canadians to study the whole question without feeling that a continuation of close Allied co-operation for some years after the war to clear up difficult situations could have so arranged this matter that the European countries would not have had to be humiliated by being placed in a position where it was impossible to pay the amounts set forth in the bond by sending goods over the tariff, and the United States would have benefitted materially in prestige and wealth and trade by settlements on the basis of realities."

According to Weldon Lloyd, an American writer, in his book "The European War Debts and Their Settlement", when the British debts to the United States were funded in 1922-25, Great Britain still owed the U.S. a balance of $10.4 billions after having already paid $651.4 millions.

Sees U.S. As Debtor

On the other hand M. Cheradame, writing in Le Francois Realiste in 1929 shows a credit balance for the Allies of $625 millions, if the United States had been willing to recognize as a bill, the amount of money that country had saved by remaining out of the conflict for 15 months. Cheradame estimates that with an army of 2,084,000 in the field the cost to the United States of 465 days of warfare it avoided by delayed entry, would have been $9.5 billions and with interest it would have amounted to $11.9 billions by 1929.

After referring to defaulted debts of the United States to both France and Britain, incurred in earlier days, Mr. Jeffers appropriately comments: "There is ample material here for a cleaning of the international slate and the stopping for all time of the bickering and contentions that go with disputes about money," and suggests that since cross credits worked out well between Britain and Canada in the last war, there is no reason why they should not do so in this war.

Selected For Experience

Women Pilots Doing Important Work Are All Veteran Fliers

Nine women, first feminine members of a new wartime organization known as the Air Transport Auxiliary, daily report for duty at an air-drome near London. Their job is to ferry pilot-training planes from factories to Royal Air Force depots "somewhere in the United Kingdom."

Headed by 29-year-old Pauline Gower, daughter of Sir Robert Gower, Conservative House of Commons member for Gillingham, Kent, this exclusive squadron includes women specially selected for their experience in flying. None of them has had less than 600 hours flying and Miss Gower has had 2,000 hours.

Baby of the corps is 22-year-old Joan Hughes. She learned to fly at the age of 17 before she had left school and has for some time been a flying instructor at Romford, Essex.

Miss Gower holds rank as First Officer. The remaining eight members hold rank of Second Officers. All receive salaries and flight pay. They will have additional duties of flying distinguished service personnel to France.

It is expected that the number enrolled will be increased soon and there are already 25 other volunteers awaiting call-up.

Inventions Being Perfected

Many Will Be Fortune Makers In Few Years Time

There are many new inventions that are now being perfected. In 10 years time, very likely they will be making fortunes for those who market them.

New ways have been found to obtain heat and power from the sun. There are already several hundred solar water-heaters in California.

It is now possible to make a wall emit light, by coating it with fluorescent materials.

Nonmetallic bearings, lubricated with water instead of oil, can now be made from plastics.

Last year a new fibre, called "Nylon" was patented. It is made from coal, air and water, and is said to be as strong as steel. Efficiency Magazine.

Not all of the Latin names of plants are difficult to remember. We use many such names as acacia, asparagus, aster, begonia, clematis, geranium, magnolia, smilax, and spirea.

Although Japan leads the world in producing synthetic fibres commercially, none of these fibres were invented there, says "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry".

Followed Route Of Columbus

Now Reach The Conclusion That Christopher Was A Great Navigator

Eight modern prototypes of Christopher Columbus who, on a four-months, 10,000-mile voyage retraced parts of the route taken by the Santa Maria, Nina and Pinta, arrived in New York convinced that as a dead-reckoning navigator Columbus has few equals.

Professor Samuel Elliott Morison of the Harvard University department of history, head of the expedition, his wife, Captain John W. McElroy of Boston; Clifton W. Anderson, expedition surgeon, and four members of the crew returned on the United Fruit liner Veragua from Kingston, Jamaica, where their exploratory voyage ended.

The expedition of 20 members sailed last September on the 100-foot ketch Capitania, named for the flagship of Columbus' third voyage, and the sailing vessel Mary Otis.

They dropped anchor first at the Azores, then visited Lisbon and headed south for Henlva, the Spanish port from which Columbus embarked on his first voyage. Then the expedition put in at Porto Santo and the Canary Islands.

On the western voyage the two vessels touched at Trinidad, followed the Central South American coast as far as Honduras and crossed the Caribbean to complete the voyage at Kingston.

The voyagers were guided by old manuscripts and records of Columbus' routes across the Atlantic. Their findings will go into the archives of "Columbus, Seaman and Discoverer."

"The voyage proved that Columbus was a very great seaman and navigator," said Morison.

Russia purchased $7,000,000 worth of American products in a month.

More Speed In Air

Size Of Plane Wings Cut By Invention Of Engineer

The successful conclusion of a 10-year search for a means of trebling the lift of airplane wings—and thereby open a new avenue to increased speed—was announced by Prof. E. A. Stalker, head of the department of aeronautical engineering at the University of Michigan.

In a paper prepared for the annual meeting of the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences at Columbia University, Prof. Stalker described a system which permits a reduction in an airplane's wing area by two-thirds.

As a result, he said, the speed of a plane having a top rating of 400 miles an hour could be boosted to approximately 500 miles an hour.

Used without a reduction in wing area, the Stalker invention would reduce the landing speeds of airplanes almost by half.

His device, he told the institute, permits high rates of climb and low speed of descent without the usual danger of losing lateral control, loss of which, with resulting stalls and spins, has accounted for as much as 80 per cent. of airplane accidents.

Courage May Be Greater Factor In Winning The War Than Strategical Results

"It is a mechanized war, they say. Courage will not stop a tank, or halt a falling bomb, or resist a mine."

No. But courage is still a weapon. The one weapon without which the others are impotent.

Consider what courage — human quality added to the mechanical equipment — has achieved already. Its psychological effect on both combatants and neutrals is likely to endure throughout the war, and to prove of greater importance than the strategical results.

The Navy, of course, claims the chief honors. Everyone must appreciate the immense courage shown by the three cruisers at Montevideo and by the two submarines in the North Sea, which inflicted such heavy damage on enemy warships in spite of the protection of mine fields and escorts of destroyers and aircraft.

Less sensational but no less remarkable is the courage of the mine sweepers. Without the stimulus of excitement, they carry out their desperately dangerous duties without cease.

The R.A.F. has also shown by engaging fighting aircraft with their bombers that success can be gained by skill and determination even when theoretically it could not be expected.

Another event has been the arrival of the first Canadian Division. Coupled with the news that Australian and New Zealand Divisions are ready to sail, this must make Hitler wonder whether the British Empire can really be in decay.

Apart from the sign of unity of purpose it gives, the military value of Dominion assistance is very great. Those who realize that best are German soldiers who had to fight, and British regular officers who were associated with, Dominion troops in the First Great War.

Quick to learn, thorough in all their methods, and full of initiative and offensive spirit, these Dominion troops had no superiors and few equals.

While still raw, the Canadians of 1914-18 came through the first gas attack and Australians and New Zealanders through the Anzac landing in a manner that left no doubt as to their potentialities. Further experience made them the more formidable and at the end of the war they showed no signs of exhaustion.

Many ask what is the meaning of "patrol activity", "raids" and "artillery fire", often announced in communiques. Such activities are not intended to produce any decisive result. Perhaps their main object is psychological.

Troops allowed to hold their position passively undoubtedly tend to become inert, bored and either jumpy or careless. Activity and excitement is the best cure.

In addition the training value of patrolling and minor operations is very great. This may sound a hard and dangerous doctrine, but the lessons learned save life in the end.

There is another reason for patrol activity and raids. Information is required of enemy points. Much of that information can only be got by capture of prisoners. It is for instance important to know what divisions are holding the position and what extent of front they occupy. That is an indication of the strength of the troops holding the line and the numbers in reserve. The movement of divisions from one part of the front to another or their withdrawal to reserve gives valuable notice of enemy intentions. Information which throws light on the vigilance and state of morale of the enemy is also required.

Artillery activity may be to cover patrols or raids, or it may be merely harassing fire intended to inflict loss as for instance when it is known reliefs are taking place involving movement without cover.

Much of the artillery activity is, however, merely for registration of the exact range of points, thus enabling accurate and intense fire to be opened at short notice when required.

Stories Of Atrocities

Unbelievable Brutalities Are Reported From Poland

The Polish government in exile is piecing together a story of atrocities in the German-occupied portion of Poland which it says rival or surpass the most barbarous treatment of a conquered people in history.

In its series of "white papers", which are being issued periodically and are to be assembled in a book later, the Polish government describes the land that Germany seized as one of hunger, stark fear, wrecked churches and hospitals, and executions. It says deportations of the populace are conducted with methodical brutality.

A similar paper was issued by the Polish envoys to Italy and the Vatican.

Tales of atrocities and suffering also are reported from that portion of Poland which fell to Soviet Russia, but the papers deal mostly with the part held by Germany.

The Poles declare the papers contain only information which has been carefully investigated and verified, including an estimate that the Germans have executed 18,000 Poles of all classes.

At Bydgoszcz alone, the papers say, 6,000 persons had been shot down by the close of 1939, three months after Germany conquered the country.

As an example, one paper says the Bydgoszcz mayor, a Mr. Barczewski, "was ordered to clean the automobile of the Gestapo (German secret police) with his tongue. He protested and was odiously beaten up and later shot to death."

The paper adds that "shortly after the Germans took Bydgoszcz 5,000 men, among them many priests, were shut up in the cavalry regiment stables in Gdanska street."

"They were so packed that they had barely room to stand. They remained thus penned for six weeks. At night the prisoners slept one on top of another."

Enemy Of Ships

Millions Of Dollars Spent To Clear Barnacles From Vessels

That ancient enemy of ships, the barnacle, is helping Britain's navy to "throttle" that of Germany. Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, who retired from the navy recently after completing his active career by serving nearly three years as commander of the Asiatic Fleet, said that Germany's navy would be throttled slowly but surely because she had no adequate bases for repairs and reconditioning. He added that the pocket battleships and raiders have secret rendezvous with supply ships, but their speed and effectiveness are lowered constantly by ordinary wear and the old trouble of bottoms fouled by barnacles.

Dr. Claude E. Zo-Bell, microbiologist of the University of California, said recently that the United States Government spends between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 annually to remove barnacles from the hulls of its ships. Liners such as the Normandie and the Queen Mary need a cleaning once a year at a cost of $100,000, he said, and marine growths may slow up a ship as much as 50 per cent.

Barnacles cannot live in fresh water, and so ships sometimes enter fresh water harbors, such as that at Seattle, for the purpose of removing the unwelcome guests. This helps, but scraping is the only method which completely rids a vessel's plates of barnacles. — New York Sun.

Farm Prices

Farmers Must Be Given Chance To Place Industry On Solvent Basis

Manitoba farmers are eager to make their maximum contribution to Canada's war effort but to do this effectively must have the chance to establish their industry on a solvent basis, Paul Bredt, president of the Manitoba Wheat Pool, told the Manitoba war-time committee on agriculture.

"I do not consider that the prices our farmers are receiving to-day for any of their products can be regarded as war prices," he said. "They are substantially below the prices prevailing for considerable periods in time of peace, and far below parity with the products of industry for which the farmer exchanges the products of his land."

"Our farmers are not looking for nor asking for such prices as were paid during the major portion of the last war but they are naturally and properly concerned in the solvency of their industry and in a reasonable balance between the price of what they produce and what they have to pay. That balance does not exist to-day."

According to Dominion statistics the gross cash income of the Manitoba farmer had fallen from $1,628 in 1926 to a seven-year average between 1930 and 1937 of $725.

The average farm income for the three prairie provinces had decreased from $2,143 in 1926 to the 1930-1937 average of $730.

As a result of the war, Canada's great wheat surplus had become an assurance against starvation. H. L. Griffin, statistician for United Grain Growers, Ltd., told the committee. The Dominion was left as the Allies' only certain source of wheat as long as the North Atlantic route was kept open.

There was little likelihood of Canada producing too much wheat as long as the war lasted for any surplus would merely present an additional safeguard.

Wants A Peaceful Life

Englishman Takes Family To Live In Lonely Lighthouse

Fed up with the world, James W. Howarth, prosperous business man of Chorley, England, has taken his wife and three children to live in the lonely lighthouse on the windswept Calf of Man for the duration of the war. "I rented it from the National Trust," said Howarth, "because my wife and I are fed up with the pace of this civilization. We hope to live an open-air life of peace, and build our existence on the Swiss Family Robinson ideal."

One Or The Other

It was so cloudy that the barrage balloons were invisible from the ground. An inquisitive old man, looking on, was frankly puzzled.

"How do you know there's a balloon at the end of that rope?" he asked one of the men on duty.

The soldier cocked an eye skyward and replied:

"If there ain't, then, lummy, I've done the blooming Indian rope trick."

Little Change Has Been Made In Basic Principle Of Fighting In The Air

Air fighting, in spite of the pre-war prophets, seems to remain just the same now as it used to be. When Allied and enemy airplanes meet they behave exactly as they did 21 years ago.

Personally I think that there are certain basic manoeuvres which will remain as long as there is such a thing as air fighting. Some people imagine that when two airplanes fight they indulge in loops and rolls and bunts and all kinds of complicated aerobatics. Aerobatics are used; but the basic manoeuvre now as in 1918 is the ordinary steeply-banked turn. Air fighting consists of turning. When the machines meet they swing immediately into a turn. Then they keep turning and turning until one gets a sight on the other.

Turning is often the beginning and end of an air fight; but it is turning of a special kind, and it subjects the pilots to terrific strains. Those strains, just like the tactics, are the same now as they were in the earlier war. The other day I was visiting a fighter squadron in France. I talked with a pilot who had just shot down a German machine and it was really extraordinary the way everything he told me seemed to be an echo of my own experiences in many of the combats I had taken part in in the earlier war. There is no doubt that the basic methods of air fighting are unalterable.

And the physical strains are much the same because, although the pilots of the earlier war were moving at only about a third of the speed of the pilots of this one, they were subject to the same accelerations, or to the same loads, as one might say. These loads are illustrated by the old business of swinging a bucket full of water over the head. The centrifugal force keeps the water in the bucket. And the faster you swing the bucket the more they will be crushed down until they finally feel as if they will be forced bodily down through the bottom of the fuselage. They may be held down with two, three, four, or even five times the force of gravity.

To-day's machines may be turning at 300 miles an hour. The machines of 1918 may have been turning at only 100 miles an hour. But the pilot may have just the same load on him because the tightness of the turn — that is, the radius of the turn — is different. A modern airplane going at 300 miles per hour — with its pilot weighing two-and-a-half times what he normally weighs — would be sweeping round on a thousand-yard radius. If one of the old machines, flying at only 100 miles an hour, were to be turned on a radius of about 20 yards, the pilot would weigh the same amount that is, two-and-a-half times his ordinary weight.

In other words, the two pilots, while turning, would be pressed down in their seats in the same way and would feel just the same sort of effect. It's a most unpleasant effect. The head seems to be made of lead and to be forced down between the shoulders. If one could sit still and hold tight it would not be so bad. But it is essential to watch the enemy and so the head must be turned and tilted. And every time it is tilted it feels as if it will be snapped off.

If two machines of equal manoeuvrability meet in a fight, the turning may go on for a long time. It leaves the pilot feeling rather as if he had just been put through a steam threshing machine.

The turning technique is seen at its most intense when fighter meets fighter; but the same basic manoeuvre appears when fighter attacks bomber. If you ever happen to see a fighter make contact with an enemy bomber, you will see the enemy bomber start to turn directly the fighter comes within range. It cannot play the turning game too long, because it has got to get home, and that is one of its disadvantages. Another disadvantage for the bomber in a fight is that, being a bigger machine, it is probably slower on the turn. So the fighter turns inside it and gets its guns to bear.

Aerial combat is still fought by turning. And the machine that turns best wins. The turn may be made on a small radius or it may be made on a large radius at high speed; it does not affect the basic point, which is that victory usually goes to the machine which turns the best. — Major Oliver Stewart in the Listener (London).

Copper Going To Russia

British Columbia copper is being shipped in large quantities to Russia, provincial mine officials said. They explained the copper from some British Columbia mines goes to Tacoma, Wash., where it is smelted and then goes into the world market. Canadian government regulations do not control re-exports.

A "howling machine" developed by the U.S. Forest Service howls when the exploring coil of the detecting device comes near metal embedded in logs.

Just A Foolish Fad

Experts Agree That Going Barefoot Is Not Good Idea

Katherine Lenroot, head of the children's bureau of the U.S. department of labor, who ordered torn from the report of a White House conference on children a cover illustrating a shoeless lad, has found a supporter in Dr. Charles F. Pabst, chairman of the press reference committee of the Kings County Medical Society.

Dr. Pabst, in support of Miss Lenroot's decision which provoked editorial comment in Washington and New York, declared that permitting one's children to walk barefoot is one of the "foolish fads."

"Like the old oaken bucket, science reveals the barefoot boy as a health menace and a spreader of disease," Dr. Pabst said. "From a medical viewpoint Miss Lenroot did right in banning the picture."

"From a health point of view, alone the barefoot boy should be relegated to the limbo of foolish fads."

Dr. Pabst has written a paraphrase of John Greenleaf Whittier's "Barefoot Boy", entitled "Banish the Barefoot Boy". In it he mentions three diseases he said are easily and frequently contracted by going barefoot. It reads as follows:

"Blessings on thee, little man, Barefoot boy with cheeks of tan, Germs will get you, it is true, Ringworm, hookworm, lockjaw, too."

Has Enormous Energy

If science could capture the atomic energy of uranium, the 440's containing 6,300 tons of fuel oil required to propel the Queen Mary on one trip across the Atlantic could be ripped out and eight pounds of uranium would do the trick instead.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE

The amazing delusion the welfare of the people of any one nation could be enhanced by that country endeavouring to supply all its own needs by curtailing foreign imports, is quite modern.

This madness never gripped the minds of the ancients.

The latest evidence about the high importance in which international trade was held by the ancients, is furnished in a recent biography, written by the eminent historian Mm. Tabouis of Nebuchadnezzar, the great Chaldean King, who lived some 500 years before Christ. Nebuchadnezzar, we are told, toiled unceasingly to bring about a great flow into Babylon of the goods of India, Persia and Arabia, that is of gold, precious stones, tin, sandalwood, spices and cochineal dye, which the ladies of Babylon so loved, all to be exchanged for wheat, oil, wine, pottery, saffron, iron, bronze and purple clothes, the products of Chaldea.

"These exchanges," said the great King Nebuchadnezzar, "would make Babylon a great city of merchants, and so the wealth of the world would be available to enrich the people of Chaldea." For encouraging this foreign trade King Nebuchadnezzar established in Babylon a great market at which the wealth of the world could be exchanged, and where the consumers and producers of the world could meet.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Australia recently sold 7,000 tons of wheat to Shanghai -- Sweden goes off the gold standard -- Broomhall estimates that Western sections of Europe have lost 6 per cent of their winter wheat acreage from the severe winter -- Australia's surplus and 80 million bushels of the new crop have been sold.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Number of lambs available for export from New Zealand will far exceed that of any other season -- Rye production in 24 countries for 1939 is slightly larger than the 1938 output -- Generous rainfall has been very beneficial to growing wheat crops in India.

Opening of the new motor road between Jasper and Banff is scheduled for July 1st it was learned in the Alberta Travel Bureau last week. On June 29th the Big Bend road between Golden and Revelstoke will be officially opened by Hon. Mr. Crerar, Federal Mines and Resources Minister. This latter road, of approximately 200 miles, will form a connecting link of the Trans Canada Highway, and now make a direct motor route from Banff to Vancouver. Thus will be thrown open a twin attraction which will do a great deal to encourage visitors to Alberta. Opening of the Mountain Skyway itself is expected to attract large numbers of outside visitors, and caterers to this class of customer are advised to lay plans for the biggest year yet.

Leader Not Appointed

In its issue of Monday evening, the Edmonton Bulletin makes the bland announcement on its front page that:

"Mayor Andrew Davison, of Calgary, has been selected by those behind the Unity movement in Alberta to be the leader of the new independent party."

There seem to be several things wrong with the story. One is that it isn't true.

Across Alberta, in all the ridings, people of all political beliefs have banded together to nominate independent candidates for the new legislature which will be named by voters on March 21.

The constituencies have made their own selections. They have named men they believe in; men they hope will restore to Alberta the good things, and the sound and the decent things in our Canadian life.

When the time comes to select a leader for a new Alberta government, that also will be done in a sound, a decent and business like way.

Keep Canada's War Effort United!

Experienced Leaders are

VITAL for VICTORY

In six months of war the Mackenzie King Administration has set an unprecedented record of getting things done without fuss and fury. Under its steady leadership, Canada has gone ahead on all fronts—war, economic and domestic. With clear heads and with feet on the ground, this group of purposeful men is making every ounce of Canada's weight felt in our fight for freedom. What it has done has been done thoroughly: there has been no loose thinking; no half-measures; no waste of men, money or materials.

Some of the Mackenzie King Administration Wartime Accomplishments

It united Canada as never before—Every province is heart and soul behind the Empire's war effort this time, thanks to the Administration's truly national policies.

The First Division, completely equipped, has been sent overseas to a Mother country prepared to receive it.

The Second Division is recruited, equipped and ready to go over.

The great Empire Air Training Scheme sponsored and mainly financed by Canada, has been launched on a planned and ordered basis.

Naval Defence for both East and West Coasts including Air Force, Mine Sweepers and Convoying, has functioned efficiently since the outbreak of War. Of it, a Senior British Naval Authority has said: "No finer work is being done anywhere by the Royal Navy itself."

Price Control of all commodities, including such vital necessities as wool and sugar, has been established, with prices pegged low for the poor man. The profiteer is out, and will be kept out—in marked contrast to the free-for-all of the last war.

Shipping Control and Foreign Exchange Control are firmly established on sound lines and are functioning smoothly and effectively.

A $200,000,000 War Loan was over-subscribed within two days of its launching, a record that proves public confidence. Its reasonable rate of 3½% contrasts with 5½% tax-free rate of the last war.

Political and Private Patronage has been stamped out: merit is the sole basis for selection or promotion in our armed forces.

Great Britain's war financing problems have been lessened through the co-operation of the Canadian Government.

War Contracts totalling well over $100,000,000 have been placed, stimulating every branch of Canadian industry.

Canadian employment has hit an all-time high owing to these orders and to good internal business conditions.

Armament deliveries are approaching full-speed: aeroplanes, Bren guns, tanks, artillery accessories, ships—all coming forward in impressive quantities.

Large purchases of Canadian wheat,—preventing a serious wheat glut—have been arranged through a special mission sent to London by the Mackenzie King Administration.

5,600,000 pounds of bacon will be shipped to Great Britain each week, as well as large quantities of flour and fish.

Huge shipments of steel and other materials essential to the conduct of the war have been arranged for.

Make Your Vote Support Canadian Unity

Such a record simply didn't just happen. It resulted from the efforts of a strong administration working on behalf of a country united in all its parts as never before. And this singleness of purpose—conspicuously absent in 1914—is due to the vision, understanding and drive of individual Canadian and Empire-minded Statesmen who back the Empire's participation in the war with their eyes wide open and with full determination to play their parts to the full.

We appeal to the people of Canada for the support which is essential to carry on and complete a task, the groundwork for which has been laid carefully, soundly, wisely . . . with foresight, determination and resolute courage.

On March 26th show your faith; vote for the Candidate supporting Mackenzie King and help make sure there can be no break in Canada's steadfast stand in these critical times.

HOCKEY"Hot Shots" Defeat High River High School 3-2

The Didsbury "Hot Shots" motored to High River on Saturday to play one of the fastest teams in the south and High school league leaders.

Although the weather was warm, the ice was fine and the first period had seen 15 minutes go when Thorn took a pass from Wyman, drew out the goalie and flipped the disc into the open net. In the 5 minutes that followed, High River scored two goals as the results of break-aways from the Didsbury power play.

Second period opened with fast and smart hockey. In the middle of the second session Buhr broke through the High River defence and backhanded a shot. In clearing, the puck was shot out in front and Carleton shot in from his wing position to tie up the game. Rushes followed from end to end and Holub made sensational stops.

Although both teams were a little tired, the third period was by far the fastest. With about 2 minutes to go, Wyman and Buhr broke away. Wyman drew the defence and passed the puck to Buhr, who had no trouble beating the goalie and making the final score 3-2 for Didsbury.

Line-up: M. Holub; B. Wyman and E. Thorn; G. Kercher, B. Carleton, J. Holub, B. Buhr.

A record enumeration of voters is expected for the provincial vote on March 21st, and 400,000 names is given as a reasonable estimate. WILL ALBERTA FARMERS LOSE CONTROL OF THE MARKETING OF THEIR COMMODITIES IF THE ABERHART GOVERNMENT IS RETURNED TO POWER?

THAT might well happen! With a Marketing Act, Provincial Bank and Credit houses in operation, and reinforced by a return to power, Aberhart might force all farmers to accept "Credit House Money" for their products.

Don't think "it cannot happen here." The experience of Aberhartism in the past five years shows that most unexpected things can happen.

Many Queer Emblems Have Appeared On Coats Of Arms

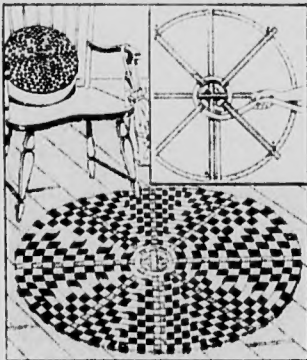

Heraldry has been called the shorthand of history. There is scarcely anything which has not been introduced some time or another into a coat of arms. It is said that if you look for them you can find on certain coats of arms St. John's head on a charger, a locomotive, a sausage on a gridiron, a Noah's Ark, a telescope, a safety lamp, and a boiler flue.

Nothing that your ancestors have done can take away your right to a coat of arms. Nothing can remove that privilege even from yourself. A coat of arms is the arms, the helmet, the mantling, the wreath, the crest and the motto.

In North America there are at least 1,500 persons from about 300 English families who are entitled to coats of arms. Every year the College of Arms in London is visited by all kinds of men anxious for coats of arms, or to trace their pedigrees. About 150 grants of arms are allowed annually, and each of them costs £75, 10s.

GAY HAND-WOVEN RUG FUN FOR YOU TO MAKE

Quickly Weave On A Hoop

All you need for making a homey rag rug like this are a child's hoop, strips of inexpensive cotton or woolen cloth in pretty colors—such as yellow and deep red. Or you may use leftover goods, old dresses.

For a rug 27 inches in diameter you require about 7 to 8 yards of red fabric (36 inches wide) and about 11 to 12 yards of yellow in the same width. Cut in strips 3 or 4 inches wide and fold to 1 inch.

Now, after winding a strip of old cloth around your hoop, stretch 4 red strips across it like spokes in a wheel, pin at ends and sew at centre.

To weave, pin one end of a long yellow strip next to a red spoke, carry to centre and go over and under the spokes as our diagram shows. You get the pretty pattern of the rug in our picture by forming V's with extra spokes.

Do you have scraps left over? Weave a little pillow top to match. And fun to weave a smart sports bracelet and belt set of wool or raffia on a cardboard "loom" or place mats on a breadboard.

Easy instructions for making these, other attractive articles are given in our 32-page booklet. Includes items for personal use—such as purses and scarves—and for the home there are dollies, footstool covers—many more pretty and useful items.

Not In That Class

A gangster rushed into a Chicago saloon, shooting right and left. "All you dirty skunks get outta here," he yelled.

The customers fled in a hail of bullets. All except one little Englishman, who stood at the bar calmly finishing his drink.

"Well?" snapped the gangster, waving his smoking gun.

"Well," remarked the Englishman, "there certainly were a lot of them, weren't there?"

Letters Seized

Three letters addressed to Adolf Hitler were removed recently from air mails travelling from the United States to Europe by way of Bermuda, censorship officials disclosed. The chief censor would not reveal their contents. They were addressed, respectively, to "Herr Adolf," "Chancellor Hitler," and "Fuehrer."

Ministers In Britain's War Cabinet Stay Close To Headquarters

Whitehall, London's equivalent to that all-inclusive term "Parliament Hill" which designates official Ottawa, has become a huge dormitory as a result of the war.

Prime Minister Chamberlain really lives on the job, because the famous No. 10 Downing Street is just a few steps from Whitehall. Below his private quarters is the Cabinet room, where all major problems are discussed. He keeps in constant touch with developments in other departments by an elaborate organization.

Sir Kingsley Wood, the Air Secretary, can be seen any morning walking across St. James' Park, a pleasant haven in the midst of all the official bustle, on his way from the Air Office to breakfast in his club. He could breakfast in his department, but he prefers the walk for exercise. He usually gets in another short walk in the afternoon.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, lives in Admiralty House, a few minutes' walk along corridors from the Admiralty. A messenger or a telephone call will bring him to his office at any time, and he has given instructions that he must be told instantly of anything unusual.

Sir John Anderson, Home Secretary, arrives at his desk at 9 a.m., remaining there until 8 o'clock at night. The departmental canteen often supplies him with meals.

According To Geography

People Have To Change Their Ideas About Some Things

South America does not lie south of North America, but far to the east. The longitude of Valparaiso, on the Pacific Coast, is east of the longitude of Montreal or of New York on the Atlantic; and Brazil is the nearest American country to the Old World. The title "Central America" is not a descriptive geographical term, for that region is not central in the accepted sense of the word. Despite appearances on the map, there is no passage by land from North America to South America. The two continents are separated by an impassable region of jungle and swamp.

Manufacturing Company Thinks Age Is No Handicap To Worker

Asking the question "Should industry scrap its old men?" the Simmons Co., bedding manufacturers, in a full page advertisement published in Chicago, also answers it and in the negative. Stating that "to-day, a man's years hang heavy over his head," the advertisement says, "We, the Simmons Company, believe there is no good reason why a man's age should be his cross. The only time a man is too old to work for us is when he loses interest in his daily life." Some 70 per cent. of the firm's employees, it said, have been with Simmons more than ten years, many of them for 20, 30, and 40 years. Explaining why it went to such an extent to lay so much stress on security and high wages, the firm says "the answer is simple. You have good people working for you . . . under good conditions . . . and for good wages." New York Herald Tribune. 2346

Health LEAGUE of CANADA
TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST
by DR. J. W. S. McCULLOUGH

NUTRITION A NATIONAL OBJECTIVE

Recently the Minister of Pensions and National Health addressed a meeting of 1,500 people on "National Health Objectives in War-Time" in Toronto. While the speaker covered a broad field, he dealt especially with Nutrition, as he was guest speaker for the Health League of Canada, which utilized the occasion for the launching of a Nutrition programme.

As mentioned, editorially, by "Health" in its current issue, the effort at the moment in Toronto is to attempt education of the public on a rather large scale, and it is hoped that the success of this effort will result in the plan being copied in other places.

There will be general agreement with the editor of the Health League's publication when he says: "It is quite likely that the serious consideration of nutrition as a definite national objective may have far-reaching results. We have discussed physical status from time to time with a more or less academic detachment. With the recent rapid advance of knowledge in the field of nutrition, however, we begin to realize that a nation's stature and physique may definitely be altered by the attention we pay to the food a nation eats. And since a nation is no stronger than the men and women who are its citizens, it seems likely that we may proceed to do something about it by paying a little more attention to the means of providing proper food for the civil population."

The results of the Toronto experiment may be far-reaching, it is pointed out, the writer adding: "Perhaps people will learn how widespread is the ignorance of how to choose, buy and cook food to the best advantage and knowledge of these things will be of value to everyone."

It may be that we will learn more than this. Perhaps we will find to our shame that there are large sections of the population who have insufficient income to buy the food for their children which we tell them is essential to their growth. And one wonders what effect revelations such as these may have. For if we really desire to improve the nutrition of the average child we must do more than talk about it. Education has its immediate significance. But it is the action which follows education which counts."

MR. CAFFEINE-NERVES: That's telling him! Those kids should be in reform school!

MR. CAFFEINE-NERVES: PRINCIPAL: Now—now—It's just that your nerves are upset—I had the same trouble and found it was caused by drinking too much tea and coffee. Switching to Postum fixed me up!

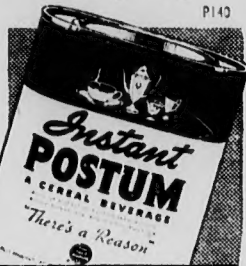

TEACHER: Thanks indeed for telling me about Postum, Mr. Brown. I've been drinking it regularly and the things I worried about a month ago seem silly now!

MR. CAFFEINE-NERVES: School's out for me!—Postum and caffeine-nerves just don't get along!

THE RIVER OF SKULLS

Hour after hour, the two men slaved at the poles, pushing the canoe up against the hard running water. Heather was somewhere behind with the dogs when they turned a bend where the river broadened into a long reach of quiet water and Alan shouted, "Look ahead there! We've struck them, John! We've got our meat and clothes, now!"

Above them, splashing the water in all directions, four caribou plunged into the stream and started to cross. Antlered heads, backs, white rumps and tails out of water, the frightened deer drove across the current as if propelled by engines. Seizing his rifle, Alan dropped to a knee, while McCord staidied the boat with his pole, and fired as the deer reached the shallows. Again, as they left the water in a wild panic, he fired and two bucks wavered, stumbled and, reaching the beach, fell.

"Red meat for supper!" cried McCord. "That's good shooting, boy! From this distance in a canoe, good shooting!"

always moving into the light breeze that blew from the west. On the skyline of an adjacent rise in the barren a line of white-maned stags were standing enjoying the breeze that gave them relief from the pest of flies. Everywhere the amazed eyes of the three hunters gazed they met moving groups of deer. Does with their parti-colored fawns, yearlings, old stags, all moving up-wind as is their invariable habit.

The three travelled on farther from the river watching the moving deer when suddenly, out of a little valley, rushed a band with their peculiar, high knee-actioned trot, snorting and grunting as they came.

"Hear the clicks of their hoofs, Heather?" cried Alan. "They always make it when they travel."

"But, don't they see us? Why, they're going to run right over us!" exclaimed the excited girl, as the band of deer approached.

The two men smiled at the girl's apprehension.

"Watch them when they get our scent. You'll see some antics!" replied Alan.

Suddenly, as the band of approaching deer, whose eyesight is poor, crossed the scent of the hunters, they recoiled as if by word of command. Several young bucks rose on their hind legs and pranced back and forth, snorting loudly. The band scattered and retreated, then bunched again, and, led by a cow, finally charged across the tainted air that so frightened them, and were off over the tundra.

"Hear their hoofs click, Heather?" "I should say so! But aren't they beautiful creatures? It's a pity to shoot them, Alan!"

"Yes, but without them the Indians would starve and freeze. And so would we, this fall!" "I noticed you liked those chops pretty well, last night, old girl," teased McCord.

"Yes, I did. They were delicious. But I can't help feeling sorry for the poor deer, just the same, Dad."

The two men and the girl watched the scattered groups of deer heading for the river crossings. Then, in the afternoon, the van of the great herd appeared. As far as they could see with the glasses marched the battalions and regiments of the army of caribou, on their annual journey from the vast highlands west of Ungava Bay to the sheltered valleys of the south—one of the zoological phenomena of the world.

"There go two more above!"

For hours the absorbed McCord, Alan and Heather watched the marching thousands, like great herds of cattle; bulls, cows and fawns, all moving into the breeze. Over them hovered circling ravens and a golden eagle hung high in the sky. On a hilltop off the flanks of the main herd, Alan's glasses revealed for a space the slinking shapes of a family of white wolves watching for a straggling fawn or yearling.

For, like ghosts, the wolves follow the migration south and again north, in the spring. And nearer, from the graveled summit of a ridge, two shaggy animals with long bodies and bear-like heads, a pair of wolverines, the most hated beast in the north, viewed the spectacle.

Then for days the hunters toiled at the camp on the river, preparing the skins and meat to be taken downstream in the canoe, and building a huge cache of heavy stone on the river shore. Days after the head of the migration had crossed the river above the camp, the stragglers were still coming from the north by thousands.

CHAPTER XIV.

It was deep in September and each morning, now, a film of ice reached out from the shores of the bars where John and Alan still worked with sluice and shovel and pan while the others were busy sewing hooded coats, breeches and leggings, sleeping-bags and smoke-tanned moccasins for use on the snow; pounding pemmican and storing it in bags, and stringing the bows of snowshoes with rawhide. The narrow, ten-foot toboggan sled with its wrapper of deer skin and the dog-harness, hung in a tree waiting for the long trail up the Koksoak with its load of 20-pound bags of yellow dust and nuggets and still more precious food for man and dog. Before the water grew too cold and silt ice stopped them, John and Alan worked on the eddies in the gorge and filled two more skin bags with large nuggets and flake gold.

Flurries of snow, now, frequently filled the frosty air. The last of the geese and swan had passed southwest. The "Moons of the Long Snows" had again come to the land of the Naskapi.

Late in September, when light snow blanketed the barrens, Napayo again went on a mission up the Koksoak to look for signs of McQueen or the Naskapi. Fear of an ambush of the dog team on the river ice, later, was constantly with them. A week passed and the Indian did not return. Another week, and each night around the fire in the spruce, the faces of the waiting men and girl grew more grave, for the boy had won his way to their hearts.

"If Napayo does not show by tomorrow," said Alan, "Noel and I'll take the dogs straight over the barren to the Koksoak and follow it up a day or two. The snow is beginning to pack. It's all right for the light load we'll carry."

"Yes, and run into what he's probably met—an ambush?" objected McCord. "No, let's hang together. When we start up the Koksoak, we'll travel like an infantry column with flank patrols out on the shores."

"I've felt it all along," burst out Heather. "It's McQueen! He's got poor Napayo! It's this terrible gold in the bags there! For two months, Dad, you've thought of nothing but gold! You've been mad—crazed, about it! You want to load the sled down with it until there's not enough food to take us through! You'd kill the poor dogs to carry your gold!"

Inhabitants Of Tristan de Cunha Know Nothing About The War

Tristan de Cunha, lonely island in the south Atlantic, half-way between Capetown, South Africa, and South America, does not know that the war is on. What is more it is improbable that its 150 inhabitants will know anything of the conflict for quite a while. In the World War the British warships that used to visit the island could not be spared and so the rock heard nothing of the struggle until after the armistice. Radio sets were introduced into the island by Rev. H. M. Rogers, but lack of electric power, inability to recharge the batteries and atmospheric interference, due to proximity of the South Polar regions, spoiled the reception, and now no radios on the island are working.
